Father Spetz Has Charge of This Great Flock.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 4.-The largest church parish in the world is in Chicago. There s no religious organization in London Paris, Rome or any other of the great cities that will compare with it in membership. At the latest enumeration, on Easter Sunday, 1902, there were 31,300 communicants, representing at least 4,500 fam floating population of the parish, the comers and goers who apply to their priest occasionally for spiritual guidance, the total number of sheep, lambs and geats in this great ock will exceed 33,000. part of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth

In his boyhood he was marked for his plety and desired to become a priest, but his family objected, intending him for the profession of his father. Led by the Holy Spirit he went to Vienna, where he completed his education, and afterward to Rome, where he joined the Order of the fesuits, being noted for his plety and learning. While in Vienna he became serously III, and, believing that his end was near, begged that a priest be sent for to administer the last rites of the church but the family with whom he was lodging were non-Catholics and refused to comply with his request. Whereupon prayed God to forgive them and asked mercy for his soul. At this an angel appeared, bearing the sacrament, which was administered to him by invisible hands. Varieties of this dish are very commo among all the population dwelling in ountries bordering on or near the Mediterranean, from Spain to the Levant. It onsists chiefly of rice lightly boiled in broth nof a fowl or yeal. This basis is very susceptible of various slight modications and additions of fowl or lamb, or fowl and lamb mixed, or capron, or turkey. Some put thin slices of bacon, or grated beef er bam, a little curry powder, fried onions, mushrooms, etc., into the pilau pot; but this is not admissible in making the true oriental creation, is a plian is strictly a Mussulman dish.
